

The Institute for Creation Research (ICR) invites applications and nominations for the position of President.

The Institute for Creation Research (ICR), located in Dallas, TX, seeks a new executive leader with a record of success. The new President must fully embrace and enhance the mission, significantly and positively impact the organization, and expand its legacy in the 21st century.

ICR is a leading creationist and strategic scientific research organization that seeks to understand the science of origins and earth history. With a staff of seven Ph.D. scientists, ICR offers formal courses, conducts seminars, and produces books, videos, periodicals, and other media for communicating the evidence that affirms the biblical account of creation. For more information about ICR, go to ICR.org.

ICR's new Discovery Center contains the culmination of five decades of scientific research. It features a cutting-edge planetarium, a 200-seat multimedia auditorium, a resource store, and an exhibit hall with dynamic and interactive displays that educate, entertain, and challenge visitors.

More information about the position and application process is available at rpa-inc.org/post/ICRPresident.pdf (case sensitive). For guaranteed full consideration, please apply by May 1, 2020.
